Unclaimed property: new address, same services for Alaskans

The Alaska Unclaimed Property program will have a new address starting July 1, when the program moves to the Department of Revenue's Tax Division.

While the office will remain in the State Office Building, 11th floor, the new mailing address and Web site for the program is:

P.O. Box 110420, Juneau, Alaska 99811-0420

www.tax.state.ak.us/UnclaimedProperty

"We will continue to offer the same services to assist Alaskans with finding unclaimed property," said Rachel Lewis, Alaska's Unclaimed Property administrator. "We have a web-based searchable database of all persons with unclaimed property."

Unclaimed property includes bank accounts, insurance proceeds or safety deposit box contents, and gift certificates and cards, Lewis said. Unclaimed property doesn't include real estate, cars and most other physical property.

The state Web site has a link to unclaimed property in other states and a national searchable database.
